The Family as a “small church”

Celebrating a marriage is the beginning of the formation of a family. Christian couples promise to receive the children that God grants them with love and to educate them according to the law of Christ and his Church. The Christian family is, therefore, the first place where one gets to know God, where one learns to pray and where one learns Christian values. Some years ago, Pope Saint John Paul II described the family as a “domestic church,” that is, as a “small church.”

Getting to know God is primarily an experience, not a learning process. Children, from a very young age, observe what their parents do and say regarding their faith. When parents cross themselves, join their hands in prayer, or kneel in a church, they perceive their parents’ respect and reverence for someone superior to them. When they hear them mention the name of God or say a prayer, they know that they are addressing someone they do not see physically, but with the eyes of faith; these are the first approaches to the life of faith that will be complemented by the sacraments that children receive as they grow. The Sacrament of Baptism is the first that the Church gives to small children when their parents want their children to share the same faith and become members of the great family of God that is the Church.

Faith is nourished by prayer. Through prayer, we connect with God and make him present. In prayer, we praise God, thank him for all he gives us, ask for his forgiveness, and present our needs to him. The prayer of Christians, the one that the Lord Jesus taught us, is the Our Father. We can recite it at various times or use our own words to speak to God. Many families had the good custom, some still do, of praying the Holy Rosary together at home. Turning to the intercession of the Blessed Virgin Mary is a fundamental part of our Catholic faith.

Educating children according to the law of Christ and his Church is essentially living the commandment of love for God and neighbor. In the family, we learn to love and serve God and love to serve and forgive others. We know that the good and bad examples children observe at home will be present in their lives outside the house. The more determined and firmer the examples children receive at home, the better equipped they will be to face the challenges society presents to their faith.

I invite you to become aware of the importance of living faith in the family and to transform our family into a true “domestic church” where we learn to love and forgive.

Who is a mandated reporter?

In California, a mandated reporter is a professional who is required to report instances or suspected instances of child abuse. Mandated reporters include doctors, medical examiners, health care facility workers, daycare workers, school employees, and members of the clergy. Volunteers of public or private organizations whose duties require direct contact with, and supervision of children are not mandated reporters but are encouraged to obtain training in the identification and reporting of child abuse and neglect. The Archdiocese of Los Angeles encourages all in our church to speak up to the appropriate authorities if any form of child abuse is suspected.

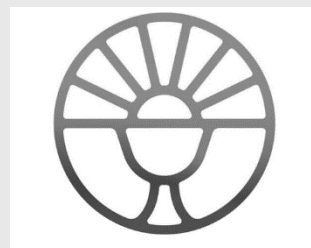

Find out more about mandated reporters at childwelfare.gov.

Eucharistic Congress 2024

The National Eucharistic Congress is a special moment for our global parishes. Since this will be the 10th year that it will be celebrated, it is an experience that you cannot miss. It will be celebrated in the city of Indianapolis, Indiana and consists of 5 consecutive days of coexistence with different fathers, Bishop Robert Barron and many more. This will be a moment of profound renewal through your faith and your being. Because this congress is about the Eucharist, the moto of this congress is

“Come with faith. Go with hope.” For more information and registration, you can scan the QR code that directs you to the
